| Name of Program | Program in Mathematics for Young Scientists (PROMYS) |
| Description | PROMYS offers a lively mathematical environment in which ambitious high school students explore the creative world of mathematics. Through their intensive efforts to solve a large assortment of unusually challenging problems in Number Theory, the participants practice the art of mathematical discovery - numerical exploration, formulation and critique of conjectures, and techniques of proof and generalization. More experienced participants may also study abstract algebra, geometry and symmetry, and analysis in arithmetic. Problem sets are accompanied by daily lectures given by research mathematicians. In addition, a highly competent staff of 18 college-aged counselors live in the dormitories and are always available to discuss mathematics with students. Each participant will meet with professional mathematicians several times per week for problem-solving and open-ended explorations. Special lectures by outside speakers offer a broad view of mathematics and its role in the sciences. |

| Name of Program | Camp Greylock |
| Description | Camp Greylock is divided into 3 smaller residential groups, which are further separated into divisions. Greylock is a community made up of individuals, and our structure of intimate groups enables us to be sensitive to each individual. We have approximately one counselor for every three campers. We are committed to knowing, understanding, and giving personal attention to each camper. We know their names, their personalities, their needs and their goals. We will go the extra mile to help them succeed. We want campers to recognize that learning is a lifelong process. We help young men look inside for their talents, and outside to find the integrity in all things. Through example and guidance, campers learn the value of sportsmanship, effort and consideration for others. |
